INTRODUCTION:

Buddhism, in its natural form, is not a religion; rather it is tradition that focuses on personal spiritual development. Buddhism was founded in Northern India by the first known Buddha, Siddhartha Gautama, in 6th century BC, after he attained enlightenment and assumed the title of Buddha. Buddha's teaching is known as "dharma". He taught that wisdom, kindness, patience, generosity and compassion were important virtues. Specifically, all Buddhists live by five moral precepts, which prohibit killing of living things.

AIM AND OBJECTIVES:

The path which the Buddha and his disciples had shown us has not been forgotten. King Asoka and Mahatma Gandhi followed the same path and strength of the nation was raised.
